Check the security of your emails

When possible, Gmail protects your info by automatically encrypting your emails, which turns them into a code during delivery. This security tool is called Transport Layer Security \(TLS\) (TLS) and helps prevent others from reading your emails.

Check messages

If you're on a computer or an Android device, emails that aren't protected by this security tool will show No TLS . This icon looks like an open red lock and means that someone else might be able to read the email.

ANDROIDCOMPUTERIPHONE & IPAD

Messages you're sending

1. On your Android phone or tablet, open the Gmail app
2. In the bottom right, tap Compose
3. In the "To," "Cc," or "Bcc" field, enter your recipient's email address.
4. On the right of the "Subject" field, look for No TLS

If you see the icon, the message you're about to send might not be encrypted. Don't send confidential documents, like tax forms or contracts, to that email address.

Messages you've received

1. On your Android phone or tablet, open the Gmail app

I realize today that I have a problem that no man can fix. When everyone else's answer would fail i would do the fixing. I'm running out of tools and duct tape isn't working anymore. I know God is the answer, but I am the type of person that don't like to waste time guessing (that's how I know the duct tape ain't working lol). The answer I need can only come straight from the source....

VUI Do's and Don'ts

Do this ...

- Follow basic conversational rules and everyday speech patterns
- Apply the principles in Grice's Maxims
- Suggest through intuitive examples of what people can say (without "teaching" them)
- Use acknowledgers to show that the system is listening
- Randomize acknowledgers to make the VUI sound more natural
- Use explicit confirmation for clarity around important requests, and implicit confirmation if a request is less risky to fulfil
- Use "errors" as opportunities for more meaningful (and natural) interactions

Matt Rudd shared a profile to Prizegrab.com's Timeline.

May 1 at 3:10pm ·

There is another scam again and it's John Funds

<https://www.facebook.com/john.funds?fref=jewel>

if you noticed the timeline cover is the same as you have. I believe it's the same person is James At Prize-Grab who did it again! Do not add him!

The image shows a Facebook profile page for a user named "John Funds". The profile picture is a collage of various items, including what appears to be a lottery ticket and some coins. On the left side of the page, there is a large PCH logo with an envelope icon. On the right side, there is a button labeled "Add Friend".
